The Hopeful Voice

A celebration of voice and communication, dialogue and relationships, values systems and organisations.

Stories and conversation for civil society with

Eileen Francis, Sheila Wirz, David Bridges, Monica Taylor, Andrew Barr and Debbie Wilkie.

This oral retrospective recalls work completed between 1970 and 2010. In a series of narratives

Sheila Wirz reflects on voice and communication, work begun at Moray House and completed at the Institute of Child Health, UCL.

David Bridges talks about his work on education, discussion and democracy in Cambridge and East Anglia and his role as an international consultant on higher education.

Monica Taylor remembers the beginning of the Values Education Council and describes current work as editor of the Journal of Moral Education with connections in China.

Andrew Barr's narrative explores themes connecting media and theology from his time as head of education and religion at BBC Scotland.

Debbie Wilkie discusses the aspirations of the Scottish Civic Forum.

Eileen Francis reflects on working with each one of them to build relationships, networks and organisations which focused on the value of dialogue.

This sponsored event is free and begins with tea at 4 pm and ends with supper at 7 pm.

A donation of £30 (£40 per couple) is requested to be fully dedication to the SIHR foundation which supports innovative projects at the Scottish Institute of Human Relations.

I would like to attend The Hopeful Voice on 2 March 2010.
